

Effigy Vessel Fragment

Date

c. 700-950 C.E.

Medium

Ceramic

Description

Fragment from a red clay rounded vessel, possibly an urn, depicting a jaguar head and shoulders with a decorative collar. Head is hollow and possibly a rattle with openings at the corners of the figure's mouth and debris inside making audible noise when moved. Unclear if figure is representing an anthropomorphic jaguar (diety?) or a human wearing a jaguar mask.
